Bhanumathi Rao (1923-2022) in her younger days was a dancer and a theatre actor. An elegant and witty woman, who's hearing and memory doesn't usually stand up, has led an enigmatic, passionate, yet a simple and pragmatic life. Filming with Bhanumathi, with her daughters Maya Krishna Rao, a contemporary solo theatre practitioner in New Delhi and Tara Rao, a human rights campaigner in Bengaluru, the filmmaker goes on a journey of life and performance, through the spasms of memory, complexities of relationships, love and a reflection of what could constitute a beautiful mind. The documentary was awarded for

ALUMNI TESTIMONIALS

Nirmal Kumar

Batch:2015-2018

Designation: Kollywood Film Director

What started off as a hobby 10 years ago is now my passion, lifestyle and profession. Cinema has shaped me in every way possible to be the person that I am today. Pursuing Visual Communication at SRM has opened me up to a lot of possibilities and capabilities that I didn't know existed within me. The guidance and support given here has encouraged me to push myself further and work as per industry standards even before I graduate. The faculty members are very approachable and students can get into spontaneous debates with them on contemporary topics, which are a true enterprise of a media department!

Dinesh Kumar

Department of visual communication at SRM Ramapuram provides a hands-on experience for the students; while I was studying in the college, I got lots of opportunities to get familiar with Graphic Designing tools like Photoshop, Illustrator, Flash, and 3ds Max which improved my knowledge as a designer. All the faculties in the Visual communication department will be supporting the students not only in academics but also in extracurricular activities. During my college days, I participated and organized lots of college events. Finally, I did my industrial project on the Sun TV network as an Assistant Program Director for 3months, which improved my real-world experience. I really want to thank all the faculties and HOD of the visual communication department for sharing their knowledge and supporting me throughout my college life and beyond.
